School Breezes

Proceeds of the concert $87.00. Expenses $22.02. Records or pictures for primary room $10.00. Banked to credit of school Athletic Club, $55.00.

The best in rapid calculation for the week were: George Woodward, Cecil Brown Ethel Goede.

The boys hockey team received a call from Wainwright on Thursday last to go there on Friday for a game. It was decided to postpone the game for a week or two in the hope of getting better ice as their ice was heavy and wet and ours was impossible.

On Monday the local photographer came down to the school and took some photos of the various groups of actors of the concert, in costume. The inside exposures were easily taken but the bare arms and meagre attire or some rendered the outdoor taking in the midst of a whirling storm as well as a big snow bank, a difficult performance.

Mr. Foxwell and Mrs. Saul graced the occasion with their presence and afterwards visited Miss Freeman.

Irvin Goede is doing a wholesale picture developing business for the students these days.

On Saturday, March 5th, there will be a meeting of trustees etc. to organize a School Fair Association. The boys have ascended. Marbles are displaced by baseball.

The next meeting of the Literary Society will be open to the public. A short play based on the international language "Espéranto" will be presented.

With the snow so soft during the past week the school yard has been adorned with snow men of all shapes from the imposing to the grotesque.

Our display of drawings on the west wall of the school, was enriched this week by some fair ink drawings of plants and flowers.

Seed and Poultry

The Chauvin Agricultural Society held the successful fair on Saturday, February 26th.

It was a good show of poultry, being a new venture on the part of the society, especially for the district and around some interest.

The classes the exhibits were numerous as one would have expected considering the splendid judges that were the rule rather than exception last fall. Perhaps the addition of the trails had something to do with this. The judge, Mr. J. Clark of Edmonton, expressed himself very favorably impressed with the show of potatoes was very good. The judge gave it as his opinion, that the show of potatoes was very good. The judge gave it as his opinion, that the show of potatoes was very good.

DRESSED POULTRY

Poultry dressed for market: 1 C. B. Ouellette; 2 Mrs. E. Pitman; 3 Mrs. Dr. Pitman.

Poultry dressed for table: 1 C. B. Murray; 2 Mrs. E. Pitman; 3 Mrs. B. Ouellette.

Considerable trading in seed grain was done at the Fair on Saturday.

The judge in his address made a good point in regard to selecting the most suitable variety of wheat for the nature of the land you have to work.

E. Pitman, the winner of the wheat sweepstake is firmly convinced that the Kitchenner wheat is the one most suitable for our lighter lands. He advocates that such farmers try out several wheats for his own satisfaction—just a small plot to begin with.

C. W. Ryall kindly undertook the duties of poultry judge, in the absence of a government judge.

J. J. Cyrderman, of Ribstone, purchased fifty bushels of Leader oats for Ernest Pitman at the Seed fair.

Several were overheard to say some thing like "Guess, if I'd know that there were going to be so few entries I'd have brought mine along."

Some such as seed and feather sounds both old and feathered.

The Brown Leghorns shown by Mr. Preston were the favorites in the bird line. They were well conditioned birds with beautiful plumage and legs neat and short.

The general standard of the poultry was very high.

Chauvin's potatoes were markedly ahead of previous records.

There was a good attendance at the fair throughout the afternoon.

Two eggs were laid during the show. One was given to a lady member of the bank staff, who carried it home. The other was donated to the editor, who promptly consumed him on the spot by the good old fashioned method of—well, you know how you used to—surely was a most excellent egg.

LOCAL NOTES

Mrs. L. E. Roy and Miss L. E. Geggis returned from a trip to Edmonton.

The Airlie U. F. A. dance will be held in the Airlie school house on Friday, March 11th. Admission—50 cents. One dollar. Supper will be served.

Miss M. Cargill spent the week end as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Beattie.

Quite a number of country members were in town last night and the Odd-fellows at Home on Wednesday last.

A most interesting and instructive map can be seen in the secretary's office of the Local Improvement Association. It has been prepared by Mr. T. H. Saul, and clearly outlines the roads and highways scheme for the district.

The gophers are making out. Two reports of their being seen were handed in to our office, Monday, February 25th.

SHORT STORIES OF A SOLDIER'S LIFE

AT THE FRONT

By this time the shelling outside had somewhat subsided and I decided to go outside and get some fresh air. It was sure an awful sight that met my eyes. The roadway had been hit in a couple of dozen of places and a big pile of stretchers that had been there for carrying out the wounded had been hit by a shell and scattered all over the place. I noticed that my equipment was still intact, and, in the place I had left it when we landed the night before. One of the old gun emplacements was on fire and I went over and helped to put the fire out using a shovel and dirt to good effect. I noticed that there were numerous prisoners around, some of them were in one of the funk holes and one of the boys was extracting mementos from them with the aid of a bayonet as a lever. There was also one of the prisoners that I took special notice of because he was like our own fellows and did not duck for every piece of shell that came within a mile of him. I noticed him turn to where a shrapnel was going to burst and face the explosion that took place 50 yards from him without a tremor. This fellow interested me great deal and as it had nothing better to do I took it upon myself to watch him. He was an "unofficial", that I knew by the cap and tunic he wore. I reasoned that as there were not many back here at rear headquarters and as what few there were were mostly busy it would be a pretty good one for Fritz if he would think of taking advantage of the superiority of the Germans and the boxes of Mills bombs that were every where in the vicinity and try and clean up the whole outfit. It was quite possible for him to do this and for that reason I watched the only prisoner that did not seem to have any fear, for I thought if anything was likely to start it would no doubt be him that would start it. He finally went away to the rear with a lot of other prisoners. The sequel to this was that I saw his photo in the "Daily Mirror" or "Sketch", I don't remember which, a few days after I was in the hospital and I yelled out "Horray". A couple of nurses came up to me and asked what was the matter and I told them I had just met an old friend, they looked puzzled as well they might, and when I showed them the photo and told them of watching that fellow just a little over a week ago, they smiled at me and went away.

Well the afternoon had got to about 3.00 o'clock when I was picked up by a machine gun ammunition party up the line. On asking my boys to show me where he thought he was the new line were shown me on the map. I went to the trenches at the level over 1000 yards in front and just over the Ancres Valley. The job in broad daylight did not to say the least appeal to me though I was not the least bit put out at having to go up at that time.

Before I started to go up the line, Huston came to me and stated that he was to go with me as well as the party of men who were to carry the ammunition. This was a nice prospect as I did not then have to be entirely alone in the guiding operations.

Without further ado we started to go to the Zollen Trench from which place we had to go to the new line. This Zollen Trench had been only a few hours ago our front line, but was now just a support and then, as that, it was of very little value.

On getting to the old front line, I started to go up it to the left to go over the top at a place that I knew was the quickest way into the hollow. Maybe here would be a good place had to travel over.

From the Zollen Trench onwards there was a downward slope down in a few yards into what is known as dead ground, i.e. around that cannot be swept direct by rifle or machine gun fire, on getting to the bottom of the slope you then go forward for a few yards, and come to a sunken road that is sloped downwards towards the village of Courcellette. This road was not a proper sunken road but more of a road made alongside a natural rise in the ground. The forward side of the sunken road is about 10 feet high and from the top of this, the lang is rising with a gradual slope all the way to the rear for 500 yards. On this ground you cannot be seen from the front by the Germans as they are now placed, but you are in full view of them at Mouquet Farm, and to the half right there is a chance of them seeing you. Coming to the top of the rise in front, and about 200 yards from the Heslian Trench you see the country beyond, and the Hun can see you from as far back as he can see. On going down the slope to get to the Heslian Trench you will be in full view of the enemy all the way even if you crawl, and there is no trench by which you can go. This is I think a pretty good and accurate outline of the ground that this story covers in the next 10 hours.

Well we got to where I thought was about the place to go over the top and I took a look over to see if the location was right, it was, and getting on the parapet I told the fellows to follow me at about 20 paces distance. Starting out, at a fast walk, I came in a couple of dozen paces to the place which I wanted to be to get down to the dead ground in record time. It was a small pit of some kind and you could start to slide at the top and stop at the bottom in a second and be on dead ground. I went down without further trouble and the fellows all followed, we then went toward the road and when we were within a couple of dozen paces of it I noticed that the fellow who I had noticed there a while before was none other than McCauley who had been sent out on a man errand about an hour earlier. On getting to the road I shouted, "Hello Mas. What in Hell are you doing here? Thought you was sent up to overlook the line?" For answer he said, "See this" and held his hands up, looking at the same time underneath his armpits.

What I saw there made me whistle for it was the unmistakable furrow of a bullet and it had (or I should say that two of them had) sifted in between his arm and body at the armpits and he was not even scratched. Right there! thought that the day of miracles had not as yet ceased and I said with great wonder in my voice "Judas Priest you're lucky. He could not get you no matter how he tried. It's a cinch that you will never be killed." How I have since remembered those words, for he was killed before he got back from that trip.

Naturally I asked him what for, where and why he had received the bullets so close to himself. And he told me that as he had topped the road side the machine gun had opened and that he thought the machine gun was just about from two to three hundred yards in front of us and a long way behind our new front line. He said that he had an idea that it was close to a small bush that was the only one in the vicinity.

Well we saw right away what we were up against, this was a machine gun of the enemies' that had been concealed during the scrap and was now doing business by trying to cut our communication. Well in the face of this it looked to me as though it would be sheer suicide to go into the teeth of this knowing that it was there, so I decided to have a look round on my own.

While we were in this roadway old Fritz gave us a display of what he could do with a machine gun by dropping bullets all along the centre of the roadway by direct fire from Nougat Farm.

We then shot over a few whistlesbombs that came rather close and that we noticed burst right on the face of the cliff we had so recently slid down.

(To be continued in our next)

The Wheat Pool

Criticism of the wheat pool seems to centre around the requirement that every farmer going into the pool shall bind himself for five years to sell through the organization all the wheat he grows, excepting only that used on the farms to sold for seed. A good many regard this as being unduly restrictive. As a matter of fact some undertaking of this kind on the growers' part is absolutely essential to the success of the scheme. Wheat nor any other commodity can be marketed co-operatively by producers unless they bind themselves to sell all their product through one organization. Successful co-operation in selling is based on sellers sticking together.

Livestock Shortage

Market experts are predicting a serious shortage of meat. Whether these predictions are realized or not, the present situation—heavy market—must fall, the cattle being the first to be affected.

Hard luck is a polite name for the sheeping sickness.

stocks lower than for years past and sheep barely holding their own—points to a shortage of beef and pork before next fall. You cannot butcher feeder and stocker cattle wholesale, as was done in all the markets of this continent last summer and fall, without restricting the number of fat cattle that will be available a year hence. That condition is now in sight. We are short on all classes of livestock. Keep that fact in mind. It is going to be the main price-making factor in cattle markets for the next year or so.

My Little Town

My little town, what draws me to thee
Why do I in thee remain?
Farm and city, sea and mountain, each
On me have pressed their claim.

My little town, what art thou to me?
Fortunes rich thou cannot give
Nor art thou pretty, so, I wonder
Why in thee I choose to live?

My little town thou hast not beauty,
Humbly built of boards and nails,
Thy houses, all are feeble structures,
In the test of time will fail.

My little town, some say that you are
Only out for greed and gain;
That your sole aim is to make profit
Of the farmers' stock and grain.

My little town: do they speak falsely
Is that accusation right?
Will all your dealings and transactions
Stand the test of truth and light.

My little town, sometimes I hate thee
Thou art so late, when it does seem
Thy life is so full of each other,
And do actions small and mean.

My little town, men of I love thee
Thou art so many hearts
Who, when needed have stories willing
To act true and kindly parts.

My little town: I pause and wonder
If I'm selfish when I say
That in thee I have found an easy
Little part to do each day.

My little town, is this the reason?
Why for thee I've much to do
My life is useful in thy service
And your folks are kind and true.

My little town: I linger in thee
Thou I've thought to go away
Thy peoples many kindly actions
Draw me closer, so I stay.

The man who complains that he never had a chance, also never had a Bank Account. He spent everything he made. But the man higher up, and the man on top, developed the saving habit early. The man with money in the Bank does not sold fortune; he takes advantage of opportunity. A Savings Account started with The Merchants Bank is the first round up the ladder of success.

Edinglassie Notes

A most successful dance was held at the school, Friday evening Feb. 25th. Although the notice was short and the roads were not the best, there was a very nice sized crowd assembled, who all had a good time and went home quite well satisfied. We were real pleased to see the large, happy four horse load arrive from the east. We wish to express our thanks to those who so readily helped along with the music. We also wish to thank those who were kind enough to bring lunch and also to those who so kindly helped in any way. The dancing lasted till 5 o'clock a.m. Saturday when a late supper or early breakfast was served. The sum of $26 was realized (including one donation) in aid of the organ fund.

Mr. G. Saul has arrived and will commence duties as teacher March 1.

Mr. Hans Wilts housekeeper arrived from Edmonton last week.

Mr. George Fored arrived lately from the north. This being his second trip to northern parts, how the country up that way George? Must be pretty good, eh?

Andy Petrie will soon be able to commence spring work on thoseli llops.

Altho the roads are in very poor condition the progressive farmers of this district are very busy these days hauling out their grain getting in readiness for the rush of spring work which will soon be commencing if the weather continues warm.

Mr. Duncan has begun hauling coal. We hear he is soon going to build a machine shed. Jack Newstead will perform duties as carpenter.

The Ribstone creek is running full width.

G. W. V. A. Aux.

A meeting of the G.W.V.A. Auxiliary was held in Mr. Saul's office on Saturday afternoon February 26th. Mrs. Saul, President in the chair.

It was decided to hold the meeting in future on the last Saturday in each month; the meetings to be held in the afternoon from 4 till 5 o'clock. By holding the meetings in the afternoon and keeping them strictly within the hour limit it is hoped that more members will be able to attend.

Preliminary plans were also discussed for holding a sale of home cooking sometime in April.

All meetings will be held in Mr. Saul's office until further notice.

Notes from North East

What is the matter with the weather. Has spring come, or is it merely a rumour?

Hauling grain seems to be the order of the day in this district. Double and triple wagon boxes are now out of fashion and a specially manufactured one capable of holding 200 to 225 bushels of oats is the prevailing mode of conveyance.

It is understood that Brady school will open March 1st and that Miss Holbrook will be in charge. Miss Holbrook was at Fram school last year and comes with the very best credentials.

We hear that Mr. J. S. Palmer intends taking some of his pure bred Herefords to Regina for the show and sale to be held in that city.

Education of the young is such an absolute necessity that it is to be sincerely hoped that the good people of Arltland will find a way soon to accomplish their object.

Fram G. G. Organize

The meeting at Fram School on Saturday February 19th was a success. The gathering was small owing to the cold night, but enthusiasm was high. Mr. P. Powetz occupied the chair, after the objects of the meeting had been explained at length by Mr. Kendall Coe, it was moved by Axel Gabrielson, seconded by O. Graundland that a branch of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers Association be formed and meet in the Fram Schoolhouse. Carried.

Moved by K. W. Coe seconded by O. Graundland "That this local be named 'The Fram Local'."

Moved by Axel Gabrielson, seconded by K. W. Coe that this meeting adjourn until Saturday March 5th at 8 p.m. Election of officers will take place at this meeting. It was hoped that the weather man will be on his best behaviour and that a good crowd will turn out on this occasion.

Special School

Meeting at Brady

A special meeting of the ratepayers of the Brady School district was held on Thursday, February 24th to discuss the boundaries of the district as to take in territory to the South and also to include Arltland. There was a large attendance and the meeting lasted some considerable time. Arguments for and against the scheme were plentiful. Eventually on a vote being taken the majority of the ratepayers were found to be against the scheme. Sympathy with the position of ratepayers to the South was expressed and it is understood some fresh scheme will be formulated. Proceedings all through were quite humorous and everything it is a pleasure to record was carried out in a most amicable manner.

Dramatic Evening

At Learig School

All roads last Friday evening seemed to lead in the direction of Learig School, and the crowd was of such large dimensions that the hall was taxed to its full capacity. To attempt to discriminate amongst the artists who appeared would be an impossible job, each and all did their best and a very good best too. The coloured pieces of the sketch need not think of returning to Africa in order to make a livelihood as after their performance on this occasion they do not need to have fear as to their future. The total receipts are not yet known, but the expenses have been well covered with a good balance to boot. It is sometimes an irksome business to have to make a report to fit some entertainments, but the only way one can report this effort of the

PRINTING IS AN ART

The thralldom of the Dark Ages was broken by the introduction of the Art of Printing. All modern progress is based on knowledge. With the spreading of knowledge the fields of invention, industry and commerce were widened and made more prolific.

The Art of Printing had developed enormously. It has reached a stage of perfection dreamed of by Gutenberg and his early disciples. With the aid of the most highly perfected machinery it is now possible to produce perfect copies a thousand fold more rapidly than the earlier crude productions.

For obvious reasons, the country printer has been slower to modernize his equipment than the printer in the city. Thus the term "Country Printer" has carried with it a stigma of poor or inferior produce.

On the other hand city printers are establishing their operating plants in the country, for they are finding it more economic; and at the same time more congenial for the operatives.

The Chauvin Chronicle is steadily developing along its own line. It has a modern plant, situate away from the city. It is producing city standard work, and is making every effort to demonstrate that the term "country printer" may stand for what it really means: that is "a master of his own art, and a servant of all other activities".

Road Construction

If the maximum benefits of good roads are to be secured, the haphazard methods which have often marked much road construction in the past must be discarded for a definite and systematic treatment of the problem. Under the enlightened policies now being adopted by the provincial governments, comprehensive systems of major roads are being laid out, but these leave out many roads which are the sole or partial concern of local authorities.

The first requisite for a municipal highway policy is a general plan of all the existing or proposed roads, together with a program of construction or improvement to be carried out over a period of years in accordance with the financial resources and traffic developments. In laying out routes it should be remembered that the shortest road is not necessarily the most economical, the most useful, or the most scenic. The municipal council in dealing with a roads policy should be governed by the largest possible measure of civic sense. Personalities should be avoided, for many splendid road programs have been brought to naught by private jealousies and petty politics. No matter what changes of personnel occur in the municipal council, continuity of policy should be obtained. Steps should also be taken to keep the citizen body informed of the projects in hand, by giving the widest local publicity to the general lines of road policy, with illustrative maps and plans and an approximate indication of the order in which the contemplated improvements are to be carried out.

In the preparation of the general road plans, and later in the location of routes for new construction or improvement, the services of a disinterested expert should be obtained. Any reasonable fees will be money well spent for not only will this procedure ensure a selection of roads based on community needs and the greatest good to the greatest number—a desirable result too often defeated by local rivalries and prejudices—but it will make unnecessary the later expenditures for doing over work which could have been performed at much lower cost.

Road builders should bear in mind that they are building not only for the own generation but for the future. Grades should be rectified, dangerous turns and curves eliminated as far as possible, culverts constructed, proper ditches dug and maintained, and rock or hill cuttings made. Adequate drainage should be provided, for nothing undermines a road quicker than water and frost in combination. Such measures as these once carried out, will mean a substantial decrease in the cost of construction when the life-span of the road is reached.

Finally, let the municipal officers and representatives remember that the one thing about a road which cannot deteriorate is a good location. If a wise choice is made, the road remains a monument of perpetuity to its original builders.

Better Equipment;

Better Returns

The first mow was invented in 322, but few were used for many years. Now one man with the average mower can cut from 12 to 15 acres per day, instead of two with a scythe. The cost of handling is vastly reduced with the use of the side delivery rake, self loader and hay fork for unloading.

In 1834 the reaper was invented but did not come into general use for 29 years after. Then came the self-rake harvester and the self-binder. The modern self-binder with one man and three horses can cut and bind as much grain in one day as 15 men could do in 1840. Even greater efficiency is secured in very dry sections where the combined harvester is used, which cuts, threshes and sacks the grain in one operation.

Beyond question the invention of the self-binder is the most important development in the farm machinery field. The use of this machine is largely responsible for the reduction of time required by one man to produce, harvest and thresh a bushel of wheat, from approximately 2 hours in 1840 to 10 minutes at the present time.

More recent years have seen the development of manure and straw spreaders, force-fed corn shellers, point planters, diggers and sowers, beet tools of various kinds and many other lines of implements intended for the efficient operation of the farm, the most important among which are the internal combustion engines and finally the tractor.

While it is impossible to determine the extent that modern implements have increased the production per acre, it is certain that only through their use that the large increase of population has been supported and sufficient labor liberated to permit of the present manufacturing and commercial activities in our towns and cities, and yet provide sufficient food with which to sustain the race. With the implements in use 60 or 70 years ago, no such condition of development as maintained to-day is thinkable.

Notwithstanding the decreased population of the farms, production has not waned, but has kept pace with the increased demand, not only of our own population, but that of the other countries to which we export.

It is quite difficult to determine the exact benefit derived from each of our modern implements, but it has been variously estimated that the increase in labor efficiency resulting from their use, over the methods and tools of a century ago, is from 500 to 2,500 per cent.

We have every reason to believe, from the history of the past, that the improvements in farm machinery will continue to keep pace with the needs of an ever-increasing population.

Social Service*Plan Campaign

Steps are now being taken to meet the campaign of the Alberta Moderation league through a counter campaign to be put on by the Alberta Social Service Council. Meetings will be held in different parts of the province for the purpose of stating the case to the people and explaining precisely what the situation is.

The social service officials declare that they have evidence of much irregularity in connection with the distribution and signing of the petitions.

"We have numerous cases," they say, "where the persons circulating the moderation petitions have given out that they were working for prohibition and that their purpose was to cut out bootlegging, thus gaining the support of temperance people. Not only has much of the work been done under false pretences in some such way as this, but it has been done in many other cases without any attempt at supervision or any effort to comply with the requirements of the law. The petitions are thus irregular, and the moderationists have not hesitated to take any step to secure signatures. Scores of people have signed without understanding what they signed and in some cases they have gone back and cancelled their signatures when they found out what it meant. We can furnish affirmities to prove our case."

It is proposed in view of this situation to call meetings throughout the province for the main purpose of exposing what the prohibitionists thus charge against the moderationists and of informing the public as to the actual conditions now facing the people and the government.

One of the points made by the social service workers is that any petition asking for a plebiscite must be sent according to law by not less than twenty per cent. of the total votes polled at the general provincial election last fall, and by "at least eight per cent of the electoral division." It is claimed that these requirements are being totally disregarded by the moderationists.

Production*May Decrease

Unless grain increase within the next month and so change the present outlook to the farmer, we may expect a greatly reduced area under cultivation in the western provinces. This year. Existing grain prices have entirely changed the aspect to the farmer in regard to grain production. High wages of the past year, and a fall in the price of their products has left most farmers thoroughly determined only to raise sufficient for their own use this coming season, unless conditions and prices change.

"What is the use of us producing at a loss?" is the question being advanced by many farmers. They point out that although their crops in the main were exceptionally good last harvest, they find themselves at the present time in a worse financial condition than the period which followed the short harvest of 1915.

Machinery during the working season of this year will cost them just as much as during the abnormally high periods of a year ago. While the price of grain has fallen considerably the farmers point out the cost of the machinery and other essential products have not fallen in like ratio.

Farmers therefore will evidence the tendency generally to make shift with what old machinery they have. They will not purchase anything new because of excessive prices. The result will be reduced business in the make and transfer of all farm machinery products.

In the event of wages still remaining high and the price of grain low it is pointed out, farmers everywhere will only work on areas of land that they can till by their own hands. They will not employ help in order that their area in grain may be increased.

Will Survey Dry Belt

Steps will be taken shortly, it is expected, to begin work on the soil survey of Southern Alberta, in which the provincial and federal governments will co-operate. A rough reconnaissance has already been made of the territory which it is planned to include in the scheme, but the surveyors will now go over the ground thoroughly in order to secure definite data respecting the feasibility of the proposal.

It is intention to carry on this survey in all the dry-belt areas of the south country, the cost to be shared equally by the two governments. A beginning will be made as early in the spring as conditions will permit, and will continue through the summer. Thorough inspection and in some cases analyses of the soils will be made, and the results will be carefully reported.

The soil survey will lead up to a classification of the lands a "little later. It is possible that some of the settlers in the dry country will be advised to remove to other locations as a result of such classification, but arrangements in that direction will rest with the department of the interior until such time as Alberta secure the control of their natural resources."
